

Logos

Who are these guys?

They are “Logos” and we are surrounded by them.

Logos

- Logos are specific designs with unique characteristics made as an organizations “signature”. To be effective they should be:
- Intelligible – easy to distinguish - you never want to confuse a potential customer.
- Unique – must be different from other logos.
- Compelling – their design should provoke further investigation.

Intelligible

A good logo should be instantly recognizable.

The Coca-Cola logo is written in its signature red, cursive script font.

Tim Hortons®

KING KONG

GOZILLA

Intelligible

- Good logos rarely use more than a couple of flat, pure colours or are done just simply using black and white

CONVERSE

Intelligible

- A good logo is not too complex – it must be instantly recognized.

UNITED

AIR CANADA

This logo isn't very effective as it takes much too long to understand.

Unique

A good logo should be unique, you shouldn't be able to confuse it with any other logo.

Compelling

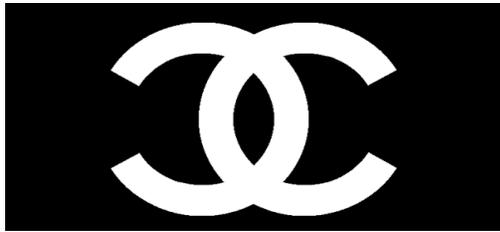

A good logo should visually present the organization in a way in which it wants to be seen...

...and understood

GUCCI

Although these are all manufacturers of clothes, each want to appeal to a particular group – their 'target market'.

These logos are meant to appeal to a young target market. All of them have a mildly 'dangerous' look with sharp edges.

If they use colour, it's bright and very visible. They want to look new.

These logos are much more traditional in style – meant to appeal to an older, more conservative consumer.

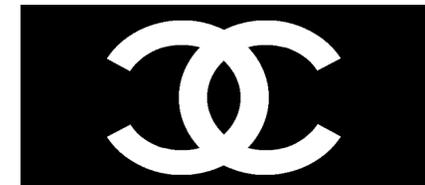

They employ classic lettering and shapes in an attempt to appear timeless.

Types of Logos

- There are four major types of logos:
- Wordmark Logo
- Brandmark Symbol
- Iconic Logotype
- Lettermark Logo

The Wordmark Logo

- The most widely used logo. This type of logo focuses on text and typeface but can incorporate other elements as well. The company name is represented with simple graphic elements.

Kellogg's

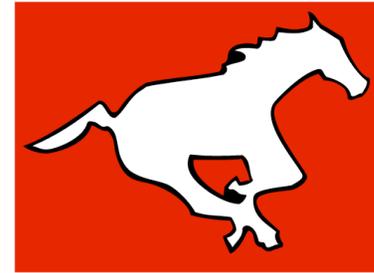

- In other words, the representation of the word becomes a symbol for the organization.

Brandmark Symbol

- A brandmark is a simple but strong graphic symbol, often abstract that compliments an aspect of a business and represents a company by association.

Iconic Logotype

Iconic logotypes are also called combination marks, they generally combine a brandmark symbol with a wordmark. This allows a group to communicate what it does as well as reflect the companies personality.

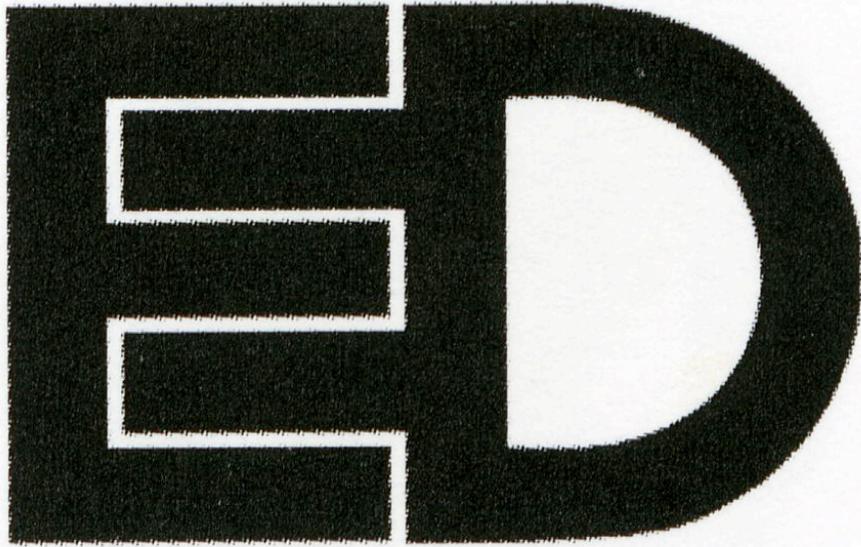

Lettermark Logo

- A lettermark logo is similar to a wordmark logo in that it uses typography (styles of print). Lettermarks use initials or abbreviations. Most often lettermarks are monograms. A monogram is a graphically represented idea created by overlapping or combining two or more letters to form one symbol.

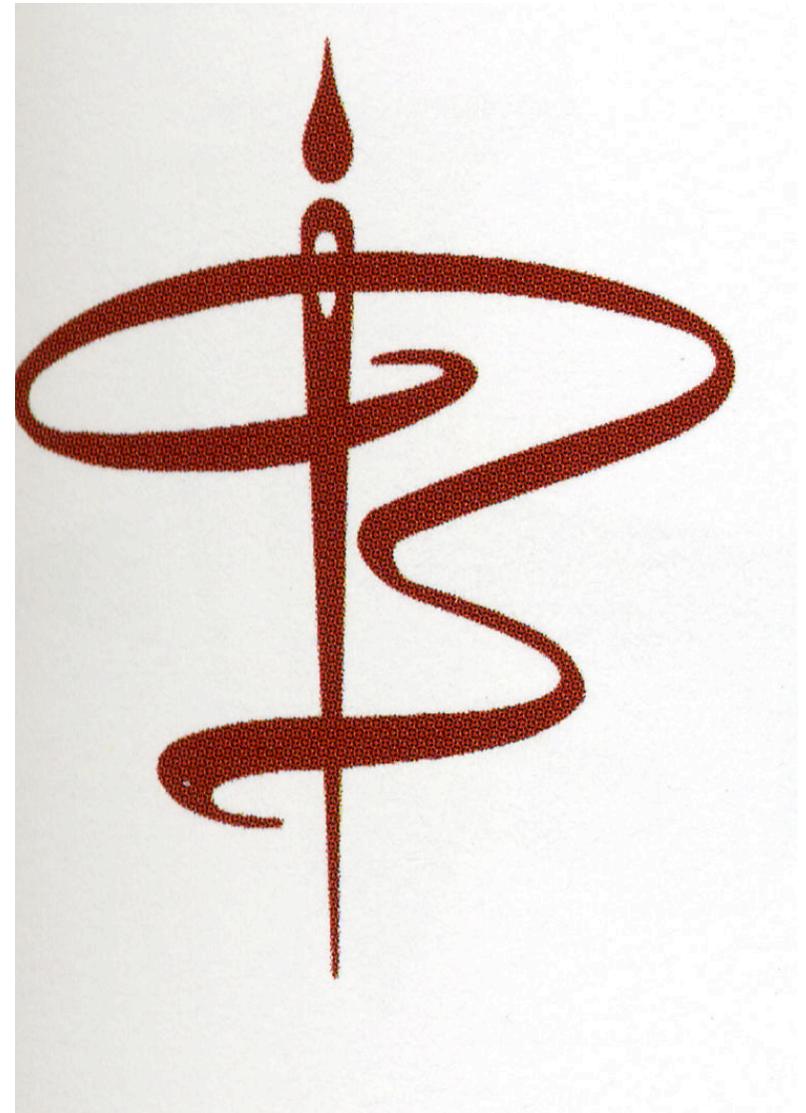

Lettermark Logo

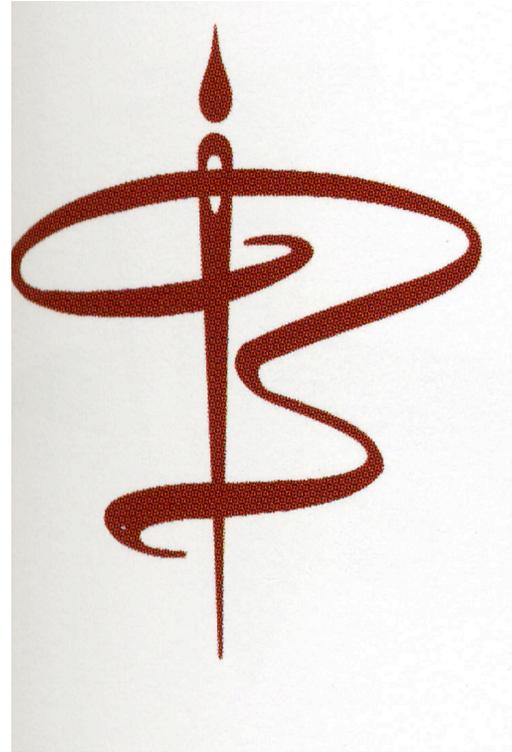

- Logo designs based on a company initials help the audience remember the company name. In order to be memorable, lettermark (sometimes called initial) logos are made distinct or unique by:
 - Incorporating a symbol.
 - Using a visual analogy.
 - Being redrawn or altered in a meaningful way

This is a logo for 'electrical digest' a professional journal. This lettermark logo is ideal for this application as it suits the 'tone' of the field – serious, down to earth. The initials of the organization forming an electrical plug make it compelling and suggestive of the type of business.

This a lettermark logo is for Brandywine Graphics, a printing firm.

Notice how this lettermark contrasts with that of electrical digests. Instead of being bold and graphic, it's rhythmic, gestural and calligraphic – it suggests the work of an artisan.

Lettermark Logos

lettermark logos:*

This logo is for the 'golden lariat' film company,
Notice how a 'G' a horseshoe and the silhouette of a horse are all included in the logo.

DESIGN

Your Assignment:
Using your own initials – you will create an effective and attractive logo.

First - Imagine a type of business or other organization that you feel 'close' to.

Having decided what type of organization you wish to create a logo for, think of what symbols are representative of the type of business you've chosen and could be incorporated into your initial(s).

For example, a construction company might be represented by a building or tools of the trade.

Own Logo

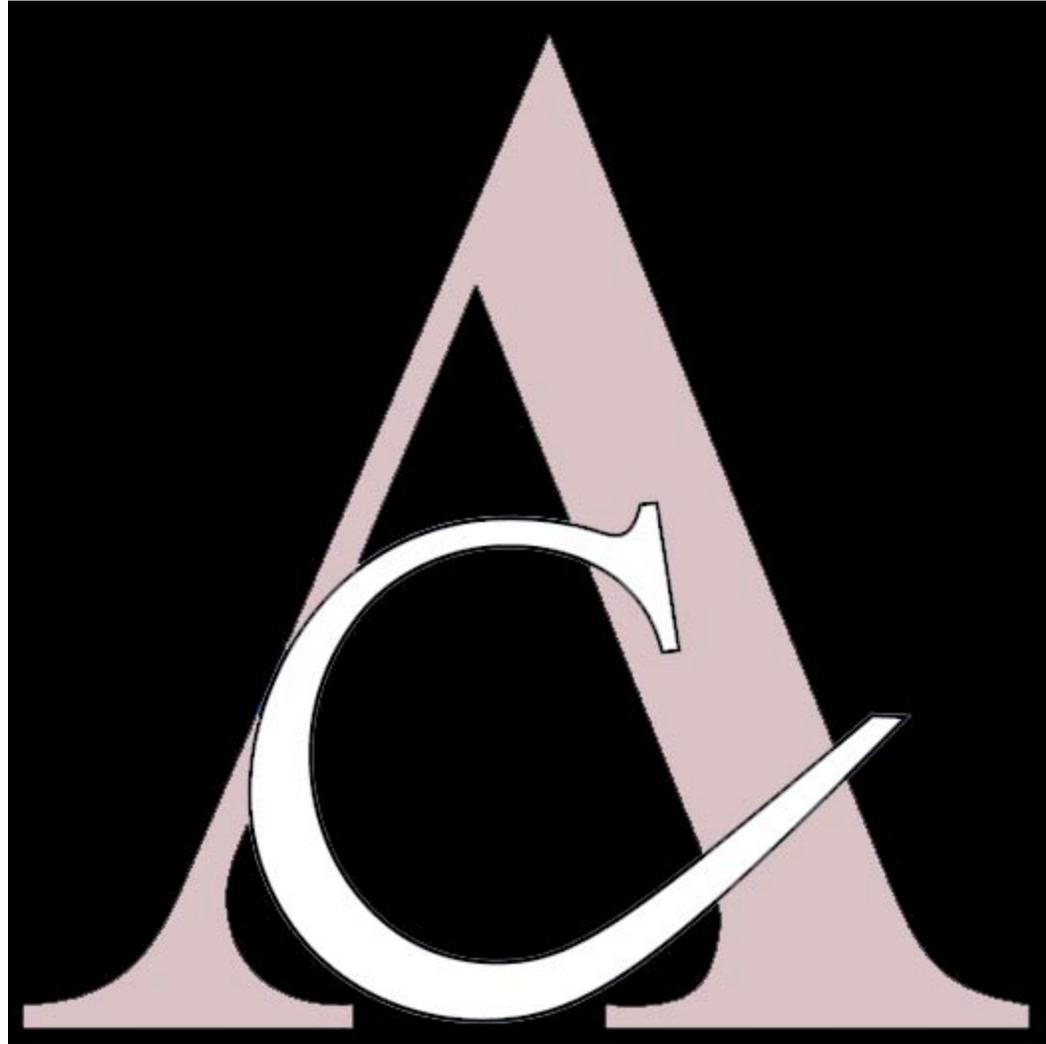

- You can approach the assignment a number of ways:
- 1) Begin with large examples of your letters, and trace them onto grid paper and then alter the established letter to incorporate a symbol representative of your chosen field.
- 2) Alter the letters so as to form a symbol(s) of your chosen field.
- 3) Transfer your small logo to your artfolder by overhead projector or a 'small to large' grid.

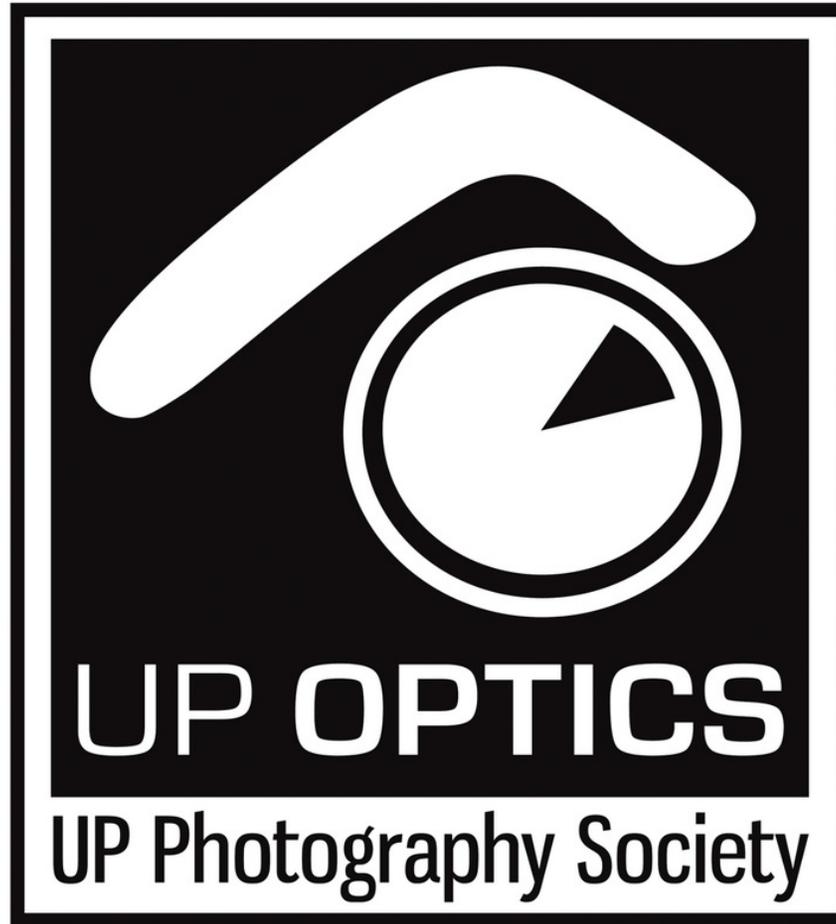

tips

- BE SURE TO USE AN APPROPRIATE STYLE FOR TYPE OF ORGANIZATION
- BE CREATIVE, DON'T IMITATE
- NEATNESS COUNTS, TRY TO HAVE THE FINISHED WORK LOOK AS PROFESSIONAL AS POSSIBLE
